Milestone Reached: ‘Attorneys Against Hunger’ Surpasses $2 Million Mark Since Program’s Inception

Pittsburgh Legal Community Donates Money to Help Fight Hunger; This Year’s Campaign Raises $102,225 for 17 Local Agencies

PITTSBURGH – Far too many people battle hunger every day in Western Pennsylvania, and now – amid the Coronavirus crisis – the problem is greater than ever.

The attorneys, judges and law students of the Pittsburgh region have once again united to help those in need. The Allegheny County Bar Foundation’s annual Attorneys Against Hunger Campaign, which concluded April 23, raised $102,225 for 17 local hunger relief agencies. With the recent campaign in the books, AAH has now raised more than $2 million for the fight against hunger since the program was established in 1993.

“Hunger is a very real problem in Allegheny County. An astounding number of our friends and neighbors stress every day about where they will get their next meal. And now, amid a global pandemic and a shaken economy, the already significant hunger problem in our community has grown exponentially,” said ACBF President Jennifer Andrade. “I am beyond proud of the lawyers, judges, law students and firms that make up the Pittsburgh Legal Community who have raised more than $2 million to help those in need. While our work is far from complete, this is quite an accomplishment.”

The campaign began in November, and funds were collected from area attorneys and law firms through a variety of appeals, fundraising events and challenge grants.

Established in 1993, Attorneys Against Hunger is an ACBF program with the mission to unite the Pittsburgh legal community in the fight against hunger. Thanks to generous underwriting from lead sponsor Steidl & Steinberg and supporting sponsors Gleason & Associates and Judge Raymond A. Novak – contributions that cover 100 percent of the program’s administrative costs – every dollar donated to the campaign is distributed to local anti-hunger agencies. Additional support comes from a challenge grant generously provided by Eckert Seamans Cherin & Mellott, the Rita M. McGinley Foundation and the McGinley family members of the bar.

“We’d like to offer an enormous ‘Thank You’ to all of the donors and sponsors who made this possible not only this year, but through the history of the campaign,” said Andrade.
